Wine and Health

Treat your health with a glass of wine at every meal, as recommended by Professor Kinsella of the University of California.

You probably know that fresh fruits and vegetables help prevent cardio-vascular diseases and cancer, thanks to their antioxidants. But did you know that white wines are as rich in antioxidants as certain fruits and vegetables, and that red wines are much richer than all of them?

The tannins, which give red wines their body and longevity, are the elements containing the antioxidants, which not only inhibit heart problems and cancers, but are also antihistaminic and antiviral and slow the destruction of collagen in our tissues and skin.

So we can truly look young and stay healthy longer by drinking wines, in moderation of course!

Enjoy!

Your Sommelier,

Stéphane Peltier

WHITE WINES BY THE GLASS (5oz)

CHAMPAGNE

OUR WHITE WINE OF THE MOMENT

Blend , Planeta, ‘La Segreta,’ Sicily, Italy 50% Grecanico, 30% Chardonnay, 10% Viognier, 10% Fiano	2007	7.00
---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	------	------

Italy's south has a hot climate which, with the right attitude, can be perfect for viticulture. Planeta is just one winery that has risen from the dust to stake a claim as Sicily's leading producer. Their history? Just ten years so far....

“It has gloriously open fruit on the nose, with a rich, crystalline and pineapple-like character. The palate is also hugely distinctive, with flavours of white flower petals, pears, apricots and vanilla. Even a hint of peppery, backed up by nice acidity and minerals. This is delicious wine which will please many.”

RED WINES BY THE GLASS (5oz)

OUR RED WINE OF THE MOMENT

Malbec, La Puerta, Famatima Valley, La Rioja, Argentina 2008 8.00

Originating from the Bordeaux region of France, this grape is among the 'big six' for red wine grapes. Well, that's not entirely true ... the grape is also known as 'Cot' in areas outside of Bordeaux — for example it is the main grape for the 'black wines' of Cahors (they're not really black, but they're a really dark shade of red, and leave your tongue looking like a Chow Chow's).

"Piercing aromas of violet, iron and blueberry fruit are followed by a massively rich, yet amazingly pure, precise palate of bittersweet cocoa, boysenberry and blackberry flavors. Riveting finish is loaded with minerality and dark, velvety fruit."

CHAMPAGNE AND SPARKLING WINES

Champagne is truly like no other beverage. The best are made from Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier grapes. Champagne and Sparkling Wine represents gaiety, celebration and success, and is capable of delighting us with its incomparable charm.

Tips: Champagne and Sparkling Wine is the quintessential wine for smoky and salty foods as its dryness helps balance these flavors. Asian foods can be particularly well matched with Champagne / Sparkling Wines because of the contrast of their bold, often salty flavors with the brisk sharpness of the wine.

WHITE WINES

SAUVIGNON BLANC / FUME BLANC

Page 13

Sauvignon Blanc / Fumé Blanc has had to follow a long and winding road towards achieving real respect as a grape variety. Its territory is found in New Zealand (Marlborough), France (Loire Valley and Bordeaux), and North America (California).

Tips: Sauvignon Blanc / Fumé Blanc is the best white wine choice for many salads, cold soups, smoked salmon and green vegetable dishes.

PINOT GRAPES (PINOT GRIS / PINOT GRIGIO, PINOT BLANC)

Pinot Gris / Pinot Grigio fares well as an afternoon sipping wine, but also shines as a partner to seafood dishes that require more acidity than what most other white wines offer.

Tips: Italian Pinot Grigio is ideally suited to lighter bodied dishes, particularly delicate seafood and shellfish. Pinot Blanc / Bianco from North America and France or Italy can withstand more full-bodied seafood, such as salmon or sea bass.

WHITE GRAPE VARIETALS (CHENIN BLANC, ALBARIÑO,...)

All these new or old grapes from everywhere in the world, America, Germany, France, Spain or Italy, the most mysterious of the wine producing country, will bring a great enjoyment to the wine connoisseur.

Tips: Chenin Blanc is a great companion to salads, seafood; Viura to vegetable dishes; Vernaccia to fresh seafood, sashimi or oysters; Albariño to scallops, shrimps.

RIESLING

Riesling is considered one of the world's great white wines since the nineteenth century. In Germany, Riesling is the most important grape. Varieties range from the driest, Kabinett, to the sweetest, Trockenbeerenauslese. They are found in the northern part of America, Washington and New York and in Alsace, France.

Tips: Riesling is particularly well suited to the contrasting flavors of smoked, salty or spicy dishes.

GEWURZTRAMINER (geh-VURTZ-trah-mee-ner)

Page 16

Gewürz means "spice" in German because of its aromatic brilliance and its lush, exotic fruit flavors, and aromas of rose and cinnamon. Its territories: Germany and France, New York and Washington.

Tips: Pair with smoked, salty, slightly sweet, and spicy dishes for best results.

WHITE RHONE STYLE (VIOGNIER, MARSANNE, ROUSSANNE)

Page 17

Viognier (VEE-oh-nyay) is an exotic, rich and fragrant grape found in the Rhône Valley in France. Marsanne and Roussanne are also part of the predominant grapes in that area, and also in California.

Tips: Viognier is the best match with smoky and rich dishes and with lobster and salmon. Marsanne and Roussanne are great with salmon, scallops and even lighter meat.

CHARDONNAY

Pages 18-31

Almost without question, Chardonnay is the world's greatest white wine. It can be found in California, Oregon, France (Bourgogne or Burgundy), Italy, Australia and New Zealand.

Tips: Lighter with fresh seafood, green vegetables; Medium Barrel-Aged with chicken, snapper, halibut; Full Barrel-Aged pairs nicely with tuna, turkey and many veal or pork entrees.

RED WINES

PINOT NOIR

Pages 22-25

Often called the ‘heartbreak grape’ because of the difficulty in making it, it represents the quintessence of winemaking. Pinot Noir is grown on the terraces of Côte d’Or in Bourgogne, France, also in California, Oregon, and Germany. Now this grape is producing high quality in New Zealand and South Africa.

Tips: Lighter with chicken, rabbit or seafood such as salmon and tuna; Medium-full with quail, pork, sweetbread, salmon and tuna.

DISCOVER DIFFERENT GRAPE VARIETALS AND BLENDS

Pages 26-28

(SANGIOVESE, NIEBBIOLO, ZINFANDEL, TANNAT, TEMPRANILLO,...)

All these beautiful grapes from various countries are still misunderstood and are well worth trying.

Tips: Nebbiolo (Italy) pairs well with venison or duck; Tannat (France) with lamb or beef; Gamay (France) with veal or seafood in red wine sauce; Cabernet/Shiraz (Australia) with beef, veal or lamb in Asian sauce; Tempranillo (Spain) with quail or Venison.

SYRAH/SHIRAZ OR RHONE STYLE

Pages 29

All signs point to a very bright future for this noble grape, which is thought to have originated in the ancient city of Shiraz in Persia but recently scientists using modern DNA technology have discovered the true origin of Syrah, the redoubtable red grape of Côte Rôtie and Penfold’s Grange is a crossing of two obscure French grapes, Dureza and Mondeuse Blanche. Also, Petite Syrah is thought to be the French Durif grape and has a similar (but not the same) qualities as Syrah.

Tips: Rhône blends are softer, rounder, and less tannic than Syrah, and they will pair well with spicier dishes than Syrah. Syrah/Shiraz or Rhône style match particularly well with full-flavored grilled meats and game such as beef, lamb, veal, venison, but also tuna or salmon.

MERLOT

Pages 30

In French, Merlot means ‘little blackbird.’ Merlot is the primary grape in Saint-Emilion and Pomerol, in the Bordeaux area in France. In California (Sonoma or Napa) and in Washington, Merlot was initially planted as a blending grape, but in the late 1970s, it began to stand on its own as a variety.

Tips: Merlot is always successfully paired with, pork, duck, and excellent in a red wine sauce.

BORDEAUX / MERITAGE

Pages 31-34

In the South West of France, around the town of Bordeaux, you will find the world class Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot blended with Cabernet Franc, Petit Verdot, and Malbec (Cot). But in America, Australia, Chile and in Italy, winemakers have followed suit by recreating this formula; called ‘Meritage’ (to rhyme with ‘heritage’). The name generally means a blend of typical Bordeaux varieties.

Tips: Meats such as beef, lamb, and venison with intense reduction sauces are a good pairing with Bordeaux / Meritage. The aged ones are more successfully matched with softer sauces.

CABERNETS

Pages 35-37

Cabernet Sauvignon is the primary grape in the vineyards of Médoc in Bordeaux (like MARGAUX., SAINT JULIEN, SAINT ESTÈPHE, AND PAULLAC are well known). In United States more than 75 percent of Cabernet Sauvignon in the blend can justify the name of the grape on a label. Sonoma County and Napa Valley in California are great areas to grow this varietal.

Tips: Some California Cabernets are made to be consumed early, and are then well matched with beef or venison in berry sauces. For the special Cuvée which needs to age longer, the pairing will be particularly good with lamb, duck, and beef in red wine sauce with a touch of fresh herbs.

DESSERT WINES

LATE HARVEST

A wine term referring to wines made from grapes picked toward the end of the harvest (usually late fall) when they are very ripe. These grapes have a higher sugar content, particularly if they've been infected with Botrytis Cinerea, a desirable fungus that shrivels and thereby concentrates the sugar.

Late harvest wines are noted for their rich, deep, honeyed flavors and are customarily served with foie gras as starter, or after the main course, often with dessert or with cheese such as Roquefort. The most popular grapes used for these dessert wines are Gewürztraminer, Riesling, Sauvignon Blanc, and Sémillon.

PORTS

A sweet fortified wine most often served after a meal. Port originated in northern Portugal's Douro Valley and the best ports still come from that area. The name port derives from the fact that these wines are shipped out of the Portuguese city of Oporto and, in fact, such wines (true ports) are labeled Porto rather than port.

To make port, a neutral grape alcohol is added to the wine partway through fermentation. This stops the fermentation process while the wine still has plenty of natural sweetness and boosts the alcohol level to 18 to 20 percent.
